The tutor asked what I wanted to work on and helped me not only fix the problems, but also analyze the piece as a whole.	The tutor helped me point out my mistakes without clearly giving me the answer, that way I can learn to identify it myself next time.
She read through my essay and offered opinions and suggestions on how to improve. She also addressed my specific concerns.	She was able to offer specific comments on this essay based on her own knowledge of the fellowship I'm applying for, which was incredibly helpful. She's also just super knowledgeable on writing and was great at expressing her thoughts on the writing with clear suggestions and examples to point out ways to improve.	Elizabeth was amazing in that she was clear, to the point, eloquent, and knowledgeable on the nature of essay writing for fellowship applications. She was also very relatable and easy to connect with.
She helped me by asking clarification on parts of the argument that were not directly accessible to her as a non-specialist. She also gave me helpful advice on how to make my writing more accessible and digestible. She also complimented my writing, which boosted my confidence. She was curious and enthusiastic. It was a pleasure talking to her.	I appreciated her attention to passages that were difficult to read, her suggestions regarding choice of words, and accounts of her own difficulty with writing. I was able to relate to her words, which allowed me to find solutions to the issues that she raised very quickly.	Not much to add. It was a true pleasure to chat about writing with Elizabeth!

Helped me better understand research proposals, what to add to the literature review, altering the thesis, and taking out repetition.	Great at coming up with more ideas for literature review and where I could go!
Elizabeth read through the edits I made since our last session and gave me input that helped me understand what parts worked well and what could be improved.	Elizabeth is really great at explaining why parts of essays are good/could be better and offers solid suggestions on how to improve in an eloquent way.
Elizabeth helped me understand another perspective when it came to the meaning of my words. She helped me get my word count under control, point out a few areas that needed citations, and made a few of my transitions more clear.	Elizabeth was super nice and friendly with her advice. I liked how she gave compliments on some parts of the essay and constructive criticism on others.

I feel like she gave me some strategies for devising a thesis and as a result, I plan to have a more productive approach to the upcoming texts I need to read.	The best part about my session with Elizabeth was how she made this space for me to be vulnerable about my academic insecurities. She assured me that it was normal to believe that you don't belong (imposter syndrome), and that just because I'm not confident/proficient in analytic writing, doesn't mean I don't deserve to be here.
She did a great job proofreading my draft and made great comments.

Talking about the argument and bouncing ideas was really helpful, especially when trying to make an argument. And learning about tools and strategies for finding sources! I didn't know a lot of those things.	That it was very candid and chill! It's nice to have a chiller zoom meeting after a day of zoom lectures. And the help with finding sources, I'll definitely be using those.	Thank you!! It was really nice meeting you and the session was super helpful :)

She helped me by identifying the parts of my writing I could condense/cut out, and highlighting things that I did well. Also gave great feedback on my research topic.	I liked how she pointed out both the things I did well and the things I could improve, so that I had a better sense of which parts to keep.

Elizabeth suggested what worked well in my paper in terms of vocabulary and flow, which allowed me to think about how to approach revising the rest of my paper.	Elizabeth was very friendly, sincere, and insightful. She managed to boost my confidence in the writing process in addition to giving me honest, varied, and useful feedback.
Elizabeth was very helpful in working directly on the issues that I found in my essay, as well as highlighting other areas that could be improved. I was given specific feedback on my concerns, and Elizabeth helped me consider some changes to make. I was given very detailed comments from a reader's perspective which was also quite helpful.	I most appreciated Elizabeth's patience and willingness to answer questions. She was very patient as I asked a variety of questions, and sought her advice on different aspects of my essay. This made it feel as if we were having a conversation about my essay, rather than just listening to criticism/areas of improvement.	Nothing else to add - Elizabeth was great. Thank you!
